The K. F. R. Society was organized in 1871 by Jesse D. Grant, son of the then President, and the original membership was eight, composed of schoolboys, who have since entered many fields of endeav-or. Every year since their organization they have met in Washington. The memrship is limited to seventy, but the full bership is limited to seventy, but the full quota is far from reached. Among the charter members were the late George G. Davenport, Lamrison Riggs, and Frank Bolles, for a long time secretary of How-ard University. New members are very charily elected, as the society has a secret of its own regarding admissions, and the original unwritten constitution is rigidly adhered to.

PENSION BILLS REPORTED

Claims of Soldiers Recommended to the Senate.

ome of the Cases Which Will Be Acted Upon by Congress at This Session-Brief Sketches of the History of Men Who Sgrved Their Country Well on Land and Sea.

The Senate Committee on Pensions ha reported favorably a large number of bils granting pensions to widows of Union officers and soldiers. One of these is a bill of Great Falls, Mont., widow of Richard W. Johnson, late brevet major general United States army.

General Johnson entered the United States Military Academy July 1, 1844; garduated July 1, 1849, and subsequently received the following appointments and promotions: Brevetted second lieutenant, Sixth Infantry, July 1, 1849; second lieu tenant, June 10, 1850; first lientenant Second Cavalry, March 3, 1855; captain December 1, 1856; major, Fourth Cavalry July 17, 1862; retired with the rank o major general Otcober 12, 1867, and with rank of brigadler general March 3, 1875. For gallant and meritorious services in battle and in the field he was brevetted as follows: Lieutenant colonel, Septem-ber 20, 1863; colonel, November 24, 1863; brigadier general and major general March 13, 1865.

He was acting judge advocate of the military division of the Tennessec to August 13, 1866; of the Department of the Tennessee to March 15, 1867, and of the Department of the Cumberland until he was retired from active service. October 12, 1867, with the cash of the Cumberland until the was retired from active service. 12, 1867, with the rank of major general, for disability from wounds received in battle, which rank was changed to brigadier general by act of March 3, 1875. General Joanson died from pneumonia, April 21, 1837.

General Wright's Record.

A bill granting a pension to Louisa M. Wright, widow of Gen. Horatio G. Wright, who died at his home in this city, July 1899, has been favorably reported.

2, 1899, has been favorably reported. Horatio G. Wright, late brigadier general and Chief of Engineers, United States army, was born in Clinton, Conn., March 6, 1820, and entered the Military Academy at West Point at the age of seventeen. He graduated at the age of twenty-one, and was assigned to the engineers. Seven years later he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant, and in July, 1855, became a captain. On May 14, 1861, he was tendered the grade of major in the Thirteenth Regiment of Infantry, which he declined, and in August of the same year he attained that rank in his own corps, the engineers. the engineers.

On November 23, 1865, General Wright became a lieutenant colonel in the regular army, and March 4, 1879a, colonel of engineers. On June 39 of the same year he was elevated by the President to the highest grade in his corps; that of brigadier general and Chief of Engineers, fourteen years later than he would have received that appointment had President Abraham Lincoln lived to fulfill his promise made to appoint him Chief of Engineers, fourteen years particularly in breaking the lines at Petersburg, April 2 of that year. President Lincoln did not live to carry out his plan, and Gen. A. A. Humphreys was promoted at that time.

The beginning of the civil war found General Wright a major of engineers, He was chief engineers of the expedition, and participated in the first battle of Bull Run. As a brigadier general of volunteers he commanded the Port Royal expedition, which operated in South Carolina and the engineers.

On November 23, 1855. General Wright became a lieutenant colonel in the regular army, and March 4, 1879, a colonel of engineers. On June 30 of the same year he was clevated by the President to the highest grade in his corps, that of brigadier general and Chief of Engineers, fourteen years later than he would have received that appointment had President Abraham Lincoln lived to fulfill his promise made to appoint him Chief of Engineers in 1865, in recognition of his distinguished ser-and participated in the first battle of Bull Run. As a brigadier general of volunteers he commanded the Port Royal expedition, which operated in South Carolina and Florida, in 1862, and the same year was promoted major general of volunteers and assigned to the command of the Department of Ohio. On March 6, 1884, General Wright was retired from editor earlier and the second state of the command of the Department of Ohio.

Chief Engineer Randall. The committee recommends the passage of a bill granting a pension to Mary A. Randall, of Portsmouth, N. H., mother of the late Chief Engineer Frank B. Randall

He entered the United States Revenue Service June 17, 1874, at the age of twenty-four years. He was promoted to first assistant engineer May 1, 1885, and to chief engineer June 6, 1885. He was married in July, 1874. He left a daughter who was born in November, 1883. Some time before the death of his father Chief Engineer of the seven months named were $1,474, for the seven months named were $1,474, of the horrible dens called prison cells awaiting a trial before a court which deals to the seven months density the seven months named were $1,474, of the horrible dens called prison cells awaiting a trial before a court which deals to the seven months are the customs and on the night of December 27 robbed and on th sistant engineer May 1, 1889, and to chief engineer June 6, 1885. He was married in July, 1874. He left a daughter who was born in November, 1882. Some time before the death of his father Chief Engineer Randall contributed to the support of his mother, and on the death of the father the nother was wholly dependent upon her son for support, who regularly sent herach month $55 ($35 for herself and $29 ter his child), as is shown by the records on file at the Treasury Department. Chief Engineer Randall lost his life at the battle of Manila, at which time he was forty-eight years of age. He died at his post of $32,502. eight years of age. He died at his post of eight years of age. He died at his post of duty in the engine-room of the vessel of which he was chief engineer. After his death the mother applied for a pension, but was denied because the child had ap-plied and received pension of $27 per month, which was paid up to November, 1899, at which time she became sixteen years of age and the pension was discon-tinued.

this case as follows: "At this time neither mother nor child is receiving any pension, and in view of the fact that the late Chief Engineer Randall spent about half his life in the United States Revenue Service, and the mother at the age of seventy-one years, with an invalid daughter, has no property or income of any kind, being de-pendent upon help from others, your com-mittee report the bill back favorably with a recommendation that it pass."

Other Bills.

Another bill favorably reported is granting an increase of pension from $8 to $30 a month to Mary A. Dennis, widow of breret Major General Elias S. Dennis.

Elias S. Dennis was mustered into se-ice August 28, 1861, as lieutenant colon vice August 28, 1861, as lieutenant colonel Thirtieth Illinois Infantry Volunteers, to serve three years. He is regarded by this Department as having been mustered into service in the grade of colonel, same regiservice in the grade of colonel, same regiment, to date from April 22, 1862. He is reported present with the regiment to April 13, 1863, when he was mustered into service as colonel to enable him to accept a commission as brigadier general volunteers. He was commissioned brigadier general of volunteers March 16, 1863, to rank from November 29, 1862; accepted the commission April 12, 1862, and the commission April 12, 1863, and the commission April 12, 1863, and the commission April 12, 1863, and the commission April 12, 1864, and the commission April 1864, and the commission April 1864, and the commission April 12, 1864, and the commissio sion April 13, 1863, and from April 13 to May 15, 1863, was in command of the Sec-ond Brigade, Third Division. #### M'DONALD OFFICIALLY DEAD. The War Department Cannot Admit That He Is Alive.

The War Department has made an inestigation into the reports from Water. ury, Conn., that Fred. J. McDonald, formerly of Company H, Nineteenth Regular Infantry, who was reported to have died on the transport Tartar, is now alive in the Philippines, and that the casket sent to his relatives in Waterbury contains the body of some other soldier. The records of the War Department show that McDonald left San Francisco on the transport Tartar for Manila, and that he died of typhoid fever while the vessel was in Manila Bay. September Dennis McDonald. brother of the soldier, received at Water-bury, Conn., the following letter from Captain Hanson, of the Tartar: Frederick McDonald died August 22, at Manila lay of typhoid fever. As McDonald had died on board of the vessel his remains were placed in a casket and sent to San Francisco to Dennis Mc-Donald, his brother, and were later sent to Waterbury, where they were buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery, October 22, without being identified by any of the relatives, as the body was in a hermetically sealed cas-

The report that McDonald is alive was conveyed in a letter received at Water-bury by John Noonan from his brother, William Nooran, a private in the Twentieth Infantry

It is claimed that this letter was dated t Manih. December 3, 1899. The fact hat the writer says that McDonald is fighting with the Forty-seventh Infantry is said at the War Department to disprove the whole story about McDonald's being alive, as the Forty-seventh Infantry did not arrive at Manila until December 22. A Report Issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau. A report issued today by the Internal Revenue Bureau shows that illicit dis-tilling in certain sections of the country is on the the increase. Illicit stills are particularly numerous in remote mountain localities of some of the Southern States. Most stringent methods and measures have been adopted by the Revenue Service to apprehend the offenders, and bring their Hegitimate trade to an end. Last year 2,190 illicit stills were seized, 187 of which were located in Alabama, 539 in North Carolina, and 602 in Georgia.

The sum of $70,673 was expended in detecting and bringing to trial those guilty of violating the internal revenue laws. The greater part of this money was expended in investigating suspected cases. This line of work requires the greatest circumspection and tact, and the utmost secrecy. The process of hunting down illicit distillers is attended with the greatest danger, as may be judged from the est danger, as may be judged from the fact that ten revenue officers have been killed during the last ten years. Much of the money expended by the Government is used in endeavoring to obtain informa-tion from the associates of the "blocka-

These preliminary investigations necessitate shrewd and cautious action on the part of the officers. They must be careful not to misplace their confidence, as overconfidence on many occasions has led to the death of officers, who were sure of their "rame."

The wild and unfrequented regions of the mountainous parts of Georgia are se-lected by the "moonshiners" as the most favorable hiding place for the successful behind the town of Bluefields and lived in behind the town of Bluefields and lived in a little hut built upon the very crest of this small mountain overlooking the sea. The numerous defiles and passes in the mountains, all of which are thoroughly known to the "moonshiner," are very often the cause of his ability to escape from his pursuers, and it is very seldom that a "manual" is taken appearance.

The statement shows that the exports for the seven months named were $1.474,101; imports, $525,435; excess of exports over imports, $948,566.

The exports by countries for the seven months named are as follows: To England, $525,187; Japan, $242,390; United States, $260,170; China, $308,782; Spain, $337; France, $33,726; British East Indies, $325,62.

Blakesley, or Crawford, is confined in one of the horrible dens called prison cells awaiting a trial before a court which deals out more punishment for a robbery than it administers for the cruelest murder.

The robbery for which Crawford and his brother George left New York on a fruit ship for British Honduras during the month of December, 1888, was one of the most daring ever recorded in the criminal history of that city.
